DETAILED ACTION

Response to Amendment

1. Receipt of Applicant's Amendment, filed 3 September 2002, is acknowledged.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

The changes made to 35 U.S.C. 102(e) by the American Inventors Protection Act of 1999 (AIPA) do not apply to the examination of this application as the application being examined was not (1) filed on or after November 29, 2000, or (2) voluntarily published under 35 U.S.C. 122(b). Therefore, this application is examined under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) prior to the amendment by the AIPA (pre-AIPA 35 U.S.C. 102(e)).

3. Claims 55-57, 61-63, and 67-69 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Malloy et al. (U.S. Patent 5,978,796).

Regarding claims 55, 61, and 67, Malloy et al. teaches a method, an apparatus and an article of manufacture of accessing a subject multi-dimensional database stored on a data store connected to a computer, comprising:

- a). receiving an indication of a number of features of said subject multi-dimensional database to be identified (col. 2, lines 60-62);
- b). performing feature identification to identify the indicated number of features (col. 2, lines 62-65); and
- c). creating an index for the subject multi-dimensional database using the identified number of features (col. 6, lines 38-48).

Regarding claims 56, 62, and 68, Malloy et al. further teaches a step wherein creating the index comprises creating a multi-dimensional database that is derived from the subject multi-dimensional database (col. 6, lines 38-63).

Regarding claims 57, 63, and 69, Malloy et al. further teaches wherein receiving the number of features to be identified comprises receiving a parameter value (col. 2, lines 63-65).

4. Claims 58, 59, 64, 65, 70, and 71 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Malloy et al. (U.S. Patent 5,978,796) as applied to claims 55-57, 61-63, and 67-69 and in view of Kothuri et al. (U.S. Patent 6,381,605).

Regarding claims 58, 64, and 70, Malloy et al. does not teach a step wherein feature identification comprises generating an ordered list of multi-dimensional points.

However, Kothuri et al. teaches a step wherein generating an ordered list of multi-dimensional points (col. 10, lines 35-41)

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention was made to provide the feature of generating an ordered list of multi-dimensional points to build index as taught by Kothuri et al. as this would allow all desired data to be retrieve in a single query and it is more efficient than invoking multiple queries against uni-dimensional indexes (col. 10, lines 30-34).

Regarding claims 59, 65, and 71, Kothuri et al. further teaches a step wherein further comprising creating the index using the list of multi-dimensional points (col. 10, lines 35-41).

5. Claims 60, 66, and 72 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Malloy et al. (U.S. Patent 5,978,796) as applied to claims 55-57, 61-63, and 67-69 and in further view of Agrawal et al. (U.S. Patent 6,094,651).

Regarding claims 60, 66, and 72, Malloy et al. does not teach a step wherein the index stores deviation values for each of the identified number of features.

However, Agrawal et al. teaches a step for locating data anomalies in a K dimensional data cube (Fig. 6; col. 2, line 38 - col. 3, line 10).

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention was made to incorporate the feature of exploring the performance data for finding regions of anomalies in the data as taught by Agrawal et al. in order to identify problem areas and/or new opportunities (col. 1, lines 34-36)

Response to Argument

6. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 55-72 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
